

WENDELL WAS MURDERED. SLASHED HIM WITH A RAZOR.

Police Have Abandoned the Theory of Alcoholism.

Now Searching for His Slayers and Robbers—His Watch Found.

The police of the East Thirty-fifth street station have abandoned their theory of alcoholism as the cause of the death of Charles L. Wendell, a carpenter of 305 East Twenty-sixth street, whose body was found shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday morning on the stoop of 164 East Twenty-eighth street, and are now busily at work on the theory that Wendell was murdered and robbed. Detectives Mallarky and Donahue are detailed on the case, and they have instructions to bring the man to the station who will be likely to throw any light on the affair.

It was reported among Wendell's friends this morning that the detectives had already succeeded in locating Wendell's gold watch, which he had on when last seen alive.

According to this story, the watch was pawned with a saloon-keeper in the neighborhood yesterday by a man well known to the police, and the detectives are now searching for this man and have arrested him before night.

At the East Thirty-fifth street station the police refused to corroborate the story of the finding of the watch, and would say nothing beyond admitting that Detectives Mallarky and Donahue were on the case, and hoped to have the guilty parties before night.

Wendell's body is in Daly's undertaking establishment, 302 Broadway, and an autopsy will be performed by Deputy Coroner Weston today.

Wendell was forty-eight years old and employed as a carpenter in the Matthews Soda-Water Works, at East Twenty-sixth street and First avenue.

A week ago he separated from his wife, and had since been drinking heavily.

Saturday night he was in several saloons, and about midnight Frederick Koch, a brewer and a friend of the dead man, left him near Twenty-eighth street and First avenue.

In the neighborhood saw four men leading a man, who seemed to have been drugged, down Twenty-eighth street in the direction of home. Wendell's body was afterward found.

Some of Wendell's friends think that he died in one of the saloons from a drug, and that his dead body, after being robbed, was taken out and placed on the stoop where it was found.

EXCISE ARRESTS ARE SHAMS.

That's What Justice Voorhis Said After Hearing Several Cases.

After hearing a number of cases for violation of the excise law, in Essex Market Police Court this morning, Justice Voorhis became disgusted.

"These arrests," he said, "are not as good as nothing. They are mere shams. An officer who brings a saloon-keeper into court tries his utmost to get him off. From the evidence they give in court I don't see why they make any arrests, at all."
